

Simply Perfect:

Cal Poly's Jamie Gelbart fires perfect game for softball team, 8

Poly Card: Get you what you need on campus, 5

TODAY'S WEATHER

High: 66°
Low: 50°

Mustang

DAILY

Wednesday, May 14, 2003

Volume LXVII, Number 128, 1916-2003

ASI runoff to decide next president

By Randi Block
MUSTANG DAILY STAFF WRITER

The voting booths make their way back to Cal Poly today.

Since no candidate received more than 50 percent of the vote during last week's Associated Student Inc. election, there will be a runoff election today between student body president and vice-president hopefuls Kaitlin Ayers and Pedro Vazquez and Alison Anderson and Olga Berdial.

► Voting booths will be located throughout campus between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. today.

Last week, Ayers and Vazquez received 29.4 percent of the vote, while Anderson and Berdial received 42.7 percent.

There will be six booth locations around campus between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. at the same locations as the past election: Dexter Lawn, University Union Plaza, Rec Center, Kennedy Library, Campus Market and the agriculture bridge.

In many past years, voter turnout has dwindled during runoff elections, due to lack of interest, apathy or not being aware of the election. Last year, 870 fewer students voted the second time around, said Pat Harris of the Student Life and Leadership.

For this reason, the candidates have been pushing their platforms in an attempt to encourage students to vote.

“I think the main reason people don't vote is that they don't realize there's a runoff.”

Cord Meier
civil engineering senior

“It's so great to have such a large support base,” Vazquez said. “Hopefully we can get a lot of people out to vote and get as much (representation) as possible.”

This sentiment is shared by the other candidates running.

“I really hope everyone who voted for us the first time can do it one more time,” Berdial said. “That will hopefully be enough to get us a win.”

However, it has not been limited to the candidates trying to raise the number of voters at runoff elections.

“I think the main reason people don't vote is that they don't realize there's a runoff,” said civil engineering senior Cord Meier. “I would really like to see people voting. The candidates have been doing everything they can do, now it's up to us.”

Another big part of the election is swaying people who voted for Luke Parnell and John Paasch's platform to vote for either of the remaining candidates. Parnell and Paasch themselves endorsed Ayers and Vazquez

see RUNOFF, page 2

Curtain on final play of season

BRIAN KENT/MUSTANG DAILY

Students practice at Wednesday night's rehearsal for “Eleemosynary,” the theatre department's final play of the 2002-03 season.

By Samantha Weeks
MUSTANG DAILY STAFF WRITER

Cal Poly's Theatre and Dance Department is presenting its final play, “Eleemosynary,” for the 2002-03 theatre season.

The production is an award-winning piece by Lee Blessing and will be performed eight times in Cal Poly Theatre Thursday through May 24.

Guest Director Erma Stauffer said the title “Eleemosynary” means charitable, and the play relates to anyone who has ever been in a family. The story intertwines the individual lives of the three main characters: Echo, Artie and Dorothea.

Theatre sophomore Kristin Copeland plays Echo, the daughter. Artie, the mother, is played by theatre senior Amanda Sitko, and theatre junior Mariam Jabr plays the grandmother, Dorothea.

“It's an evocative story about the complex relationships among a teenager, Echo, her mother Artie

see PLAY, page 5

Study Abroad program wary of SARS

► Poly students in Thailand advised against extended travel in Southeast Asia

By Stacey Dorning
MUSTANG DAILY STAFF WRITER

As SARS continues to spread throughout Asia, Cal Poly's Study Abroad program has begun to take the proper precautions.

The World Health Organization has totaled about 7,500 reported SARS cases throughout the world through Monday. As the number continues to grow, colleges across the nation gear up to protect themselves from the highly contagious Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome.

“We've been closely monitoring SARS, letting the students know our concerns,” said Monica Schechter, associate director for Cal Poly's International Study Abroad program.

The California State University system has suspended its exchange program at the Peking University in Beijing as a precautionary measure against the disease. Despite the decision to suspend one of the Asian programs, the program at the Chinese University in Hong Kong was not

At a Hong Kong international airport, a woman disinfects the moving sidewalk wearing a surgical mask to protect her from SARS. These masks have become a common accessory in many Asian countries.

BROOKE FINAN/
MUSTANG DAILY

suspended. While Cal Poly did not have any students participating in those particular programs, others are studying elsewhere in Asia.

Richard LeRoy, director of the Pacific study abroad programs, recently spent three weeks visiting the Cal Poly students who are studying in Thailand. He said he saw that some precautionary steps were being taken.

“There are lots of people wearing masks, which was kind of strange for an American to see people actually in

see SARS, page 2

Cal Poly Health and Counseling Services re-accredited

By Jenny Hubbard
MUSTANG DAILY STAFF WRITER

Cal Poly Health and Counseling Services received accreditation for the sixth time by the Accreditation Association for Ambulatory Health Care.

The AAAHC reviewed the center's medical records and interviewed two student assistants and 10 staff members.

“The emphasis of accreditation is quality of care,” said Martin Bragg, director of Health and Counseling Services.

The AAAHC makes sure the center's staff has the appropriate credentials and reviews improvement and assurance studies.

Accreditation shows that Health and Counseling Services adheres to the same standards as outpatient clinics in the private sector, Bragg said.

“The best way to meet those standards is to use an outside organization like the AAAHC,” Bragg said. “Less

“The emphasis of accreditation is quality of care.”

Martin Bragg
director of Health and Counseling Services than 150 health care centers are certified.”

In addition to providing accreditation, the AAAHC gives students a way to voice their health-care concerns.

Bob Negranti, special projects coordinator for Health and Counseling Services, said the health center uses student surveys to identify ways to improve the quality of care. Student surveys were instrumental in implementing online ordering of lab and X-ray requests and in giving students the ability to use Campus Express to pay for health services.

see CENTER, page 2

Weather Watch

5-Day Forecast

THURSDAY
High: 71° / Low: 48°

FRIDAY
High: 70° / Low: 46°

SATURDAY
High: 64° / Low: 46°

SUNDAY
High: 70° / Low: 49°

MONDAY
High: 71° / Low: 48°

Today's Sun

Rises: 5:59 a.m. / Sets: 7:59 p.m.

Today's Moon

Rises: 5:04 a.m. / Sets: 6:37 p.m.

Today's Tides

Low: 3:30 a.m. / -5 feet
High: 9:38 a.m. / 4.2 feet
Low: 3:02 p.m. / .9 feet
High: 9:22 p.m. / 6.2 feet

Marketing students in their 'element'

By Amy Hessick
MUSTANG DAILY STAFF WRITER

Thirteen Cal Poly marketing students are hosting a simulation road trip in the University Union on Thursday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. as part of their senior project.

The students, who have formed a student marketing agency called Compass Vision, worked with the Honda Element College Program and EdVenture Partners to create this event.

With help from the community, Compass Vision designed an event to promote the Honda Element and to help students escape the pressures of college life, and in particular the fast-paced quarter system at Cal Poly.

The event, called "I'M GOING eleMENTAL," will feature booths by campus clubs, a slam-dunk contest and a pie-eating contest.

Compass Vision found local sponsors such as Firestone Grill, which will provide free food, and Wild 106, which will supply the music. The Warner Brothers (WB) broadcasting station has also helped the group produce a commercial and donated prime-time airtime.

Prizes include a $350 cash prize awarded to the club voted to have the best booth, as well as movie passes, clothing and gift certificates for individual student participants. Groups expected to participate are Cal Poly Surf Club, Central Pacific Ski Club, recreation administration majors, American Marketing Association and the Cal Poly Wakeboard Club.

"We're really proud of what we've done," said business senior and Compass Vision member Andrea Duckworth. "It's so different from reading textbooks; we're actually implementing ideas, getting to put what we've learned to use."

Compass Vision's marketing plan will compete with those of students from 29 other campuses across the nation, including teams from University of Southern California and University of California, Los Angeles, Duckworth said. They will compete for monetary prizes that are given to the school: First place is $5,000, second is $3,000 and third is $1,000.

"We just want to represent Cal Poly well and show everything that we have learned here," Duckworth said. "This project is really representative of the 'learn by doing' motto here at Cal Poly."

Compass Vision has been working on this project since Winter quarter and is one of the most organized teams Cal Poly has seen, said advisor and marketing chair Norm Borin. Cal Poly has competed in this event for about 10 years and has won first place three times.

"We've been very successful in the past at this competition," Borin said. "It is a great learning opportunity for the students."

SARS

continued from page 1

fear of SARS," LeRoy said.

Thailand has remained fairly unaffected by SARS. According to the World Health Organization Web site, only seven people have been affected, two of which died.

"As a country, Thailand has been very proactive in handling their own situation," LeRoy said. "Our students haven't seen any problems yet."

The Thailand program's spring quarter enrollment was not affected by SARS, LeRoy said. The program has been providing students with updates and guidance they receive from the Center for Disease Control, as well as educated them about health concerns during their pre-departure seminar. The program directors advised all students with any type of immuno-deficiency to drop out of the trip.

Schechter said the program's initial concerns were over non-essential travel.

LeRoy agreed that student travel outside of Thailand was a potential risk.

"The students remain in Thailand for the entire length of the actual program and usually travel throughout southeast Asia afterwards, but we are definitely advising against that," LeRoy said.

Barbara Andre, associate director for international student programs

"As a country, Thailand has been very proactive in handling their own situation ... Our students haven't seen any problems yet"

Richard LeRoy
director of Pacific study abroad program and services, said there are only a handful of students coming to Cal Poly from Asian countries.

"At this point, there is only one student coming in from Singapore," Andre said. "I really think the importance lies in where the port of entry is."

During LeRoy's recent visit to Thailand, he took some ill students to a local hospital to be tested. He said the sick were quarantined for a couple of hours and eventually released once SARS was ruled out.

According to the Center for Disease Control, SARS patients run high fevers that are followed by aches and pains. After two to seven days, the patients begin to acquire a dry cough and have trouble breathing.

The disease is highly contagious, being spread by person-to-person contact with infected people.

CENTER

continued from page 1

Even though the center complied with all of the AAAHC's standards, the AAAHC reviewer recommended hiring a psychiatrist to the center's staff. However, Bragg said the center won't be able to meet that recommendation until the budget improves or a student referendum passes. Instead, the center will be working with the private sector to make it easier for students to obtain psychiatric care.

RUNOFF

continued from page 1

Tuesday with banners in the UU and near the agriculture building.

"We are in the middle of the political spectrum," Vazquez said. "We really hope to captivate their (Parnell and Paasch's) audience and gain their support since they endorsed us."

The results of the election will be announced tonight at the Associated Student Inc. meeting in UU room 220 between 5 and 7 p.m. The meeting is open to the public.

STUDENT TRAVEL

change your world

London.....$403
Paris.....$437
Amsterdam...$520
Sydney.....$921
Eurail Passes from...$249
Budget Hotels from..$18

These sample fares are round trip from Los Angeles. Subject to change and availability. Tax not included. Restrictions and blackouts apply.

(800) 297.8159

pick up your complimentary, premiere issue of BREAK magazine at your local STA Travel branch.

CS# 1017560-40

www.statravel.com

STA TRAVEL

ONLINE >> ON THE PHONE >> ON CAMPUS >> ON THE STREET

THINK YOU CAN DRINK as much as you want as long as you're not driving? Wrong! More and more young people are abusing alcoholic beverages. Here are just a few reasons not to be caught drunk in public.

DRUNK MAN WALKING

- You can be arrested.
- You're more likely to be the victim of a crime.
- You're more likely to be the perpetrator of a crime.
- You risk walking through a lifetime of substance abuse.

Don't get drunk.

Get help.

SLOPD
SAN LUIS OBISPO POLICE DEPARTMENT

www.slopd.org

NationalBriefs

Higher taxes, more cuts from state budget

SACRAMENTO — Gov. Gray Davis will propose solving California's budget crisis through a combination of new taxes, program cuts and borrowing, sources said Tuesday.

The governor's revised May budget, set for release Wednesday, calls for a much-anticipated increase in the car tax as well as a half-cent increase in the state sales tax.

The new budget plan, expected to total about $100 billion, is vastly different from the budget Davis proposed in January, which relied much more heavily on program cuts to eliminate California's record $35 billion shortfall.

But Davis is faced with selling his program to a Democratic majority in both houses that has shown little interest in slashing jobs and services.

At the heart of his new budget plan will be a proposal to reduce much of the state debt by borrowing as much as $10 billion. Davis would use money from the higher sales taxes to pay off the note.

The reliance on higher taxes means that Davis will look to protect some services from deeper cuts — especially education. For instance, the new budget plan is expected to continue support for a popular $1.7 billion class-size reduction program.

Bush views area damaged by tornado, pushes his tax cut plan

PIERCE CITY, Mo. — In Missouri

to view damage from one storm, President Bush ran into another — a thunderstorm that soaked his entourage as he looked at the damage from a tornado that shattered a hundred homes and toppled a church steeple.

After landing in Springfield, Mo., Bush took a helicopter tour of some of the damage around this town of 1,400, where a tornado struck on May 4. But the downpour accompanied by strikes of lightning reduced visibility, preventing him from seeing much from the air.

"A lot of people know you're suffering," Bush told several hundred people in a room in the gymnasium of St. Mary's Catholic Church, where tables were stacked high with food, blankets and other supplies.

University of California sues ESPN over use of archive film

LOS ANGELES — A lawsuit pending in federal court claims ESPN owes the University of California at least $5.4 million for use of historic sports film footage.

The lawsuit, filed in December on behalf of the UC regents, was assigned Friday to a new federal judge, James V. Selna, who was sworn in last month.

The lawsuit accuses ESPN of copyright infringement and breach of contract.

"This is a matter that has many pieces of evidence. No one piece will tell the complete story. Beyond that, we are not going to comment on ongoing litigation," ESPN spokesman Josh Krulewitz said Tuesday.

The suit has not been officially served on ESPN while the two sides hold discussions "for a potential resolution of the case" before it reaches trial, UC attorney Michael Goldstein said.

According to the lawsuit, in 1998 ESPN licensed about 60 minutes of footage of athletes from the University of California, Los Angeles, Film and Television Archive for use in its "SportsCentury" project.

The university contends the footage was used after the two-year term of the licensing agreement expired, that it was broadcast outside of North America and that the materials were not returned.

InternationalBriefs

IEA sees threat from low oil inventories ahead of summer driving season

LONDON — With OPEC mulling cuts in summer crude production, an already low level of oil inventories in major importing nations raises a risk of volatile gasoline prices as the peak driving season approaches, the International Energy Agency said Tuesday.

The U.S.-led war in Iraq interrupted crude output in that country and contributed in April to a decline in world oil production of 1.4 million barrels, or 1.8 percent. Although other members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries boosted their output to prevent a shortage, the IEA argued that some exaggerated their production levels and are making prices more unstable as a result.

"Unless producers continue to meet market needs, precariously tight first-quarter stocks will set the stage for tensions in the summer gasoline and the winter heating oil seasons. Crude and product stocks need time to rebuild," the agency said in its monthly Oil Market Report.

The IEA is the energy watchdog for the world's biggest oil-importing countries. It assesses market conditions but refrains from predicting their effect on prices.

Death toll from simultaneous Saudi suicide bombings reaches 20

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia — Attackers shot their way into three housing compounds in synchronized strikes in the Saudi capital and then set off multiple suicide car bombs, killing 20 people, including seven Americans, officials reported Tuesday.

Authorities also found nine charred bodies believed to be those of the attackers, a Saudi Interior Ministry official said.

The bombings, which took place about 11:30 p.m. Monday, constituted one of the deadliest terror attacks on Americans since Sept. 11, 2001. Secretary of State Colin Powell said the coordinated strike had "the fingerprints of al-Qaida," the group that attacked the World Trade Center and the Pentagon.

"Terrorism strikes anywhere, everywhere," Powell said. "It is a threat to the entire civilized world."

President Bush vowed to hunt down the attackers.

In an address to his people, Crown

Prince Abdullah, quoting from the Quran, said "hellfire" awaits the attackers.

Appeals court rules to return chateau confiscated by Nazis

PRAGUE, Czech Republic — The state must return a chateau and other real estate confiscated by the Nazis to one of Europe's noble families, an appeals court ruled Tuesday.

The court upheld a previous ruling that the chateau in Opocno, 75 miles east of Prague, should be returned to Countess Kristina Colloredo-Mansfeld, court spokesman Pavel Stanek said.

An adjacent park, a house in the town's square and other property also will be returned, Stanek said.

The family acquired the chateau, whose origins date from the 11th century, in 1635. The property was confiscated in 1942 during the country's occupation by Nazi Germany, when the family was labeled an enemy of the Third Reich.

After the end of World War II, the family was accused of collaboration with the Nazis, and in 1945 their property was confiscated again by what was then the Czechoslovak state.

Although the family claimed their property at the time, the confiscation was reconfirmed after the communists took over the country in 1948, and the family emigrated.

Briefs compiled from The Associated Press wire service by Mustang Daily managing editor Malia Spencer.

ASI STUDENT GOVERNMENTELECTION RUN OFF!

WEDNESDAY
MAY 14
8 am - 4 pm

President/Executive Vice President candidates:

Kaitlin Ayers/Pedro Vazquez
Alison Anderson/Olga Berdial

locations

UU Plaza Ag Bridge
Recreation Center Kennedy Library
Dexter Lawn Campus Market

asi.calpoly.edu/government

HUGESidewalk sale!

3 BIG DAYS

May 13-15
9am - 3pm

Save up to 75%

on Cal Poly clothing, emblematic gifts, seasonal gifts, general reading & reference books, school office & art supplies, textbooks and more!

In front of

EL CORRAL BOOKSTORE

A NONPROFIT ORGANIZATION SERVING CAL POLY SINCE 1933

www.elcorralbookstore.com

Under the Radar

No Knife's build-and-break sound still keeps a sharp edge

You know those stupid word association exercises you always see psychologists subjecting their patients to in movies? The ones where you're supposed to say what comes to your mind when presented with a certain prompt?

I doubt that really happens in actual counseling offices these days. But it's true there are some things in life — whether people, places, things or experiences — you associate with one or two certain words.

San Diego's No Knife can be summed up by just one word: Sharp. Listen to the band's 1999 album, "Fire in the City of Automats," and you'll hear what I mean.

The biting, almost tinny guitar chords that start off the album on "Academy Flight Song" are evidence enough. But listen for a few more seconds and you'll hear the guitars of Ryan Ferguson and Mitch Wilson playing in clean, angular counterpoint. Nothing could be sharper.

That counterpoint returns on many of No Knife's songs. On "Heavy Weather," Ferguson, Wilson and bassist Brian Desjean play dissonant lines that all work together to create an uneasy emotional backdrop for the song's lyrics. Wilson sings, "Did you get what you want?/Set it up over the top/just a couple of strange ideas" over the tune's seemingly strange musical ideas.

Wilson's singing, too, is sharp. His sloppy voice is calm and relaxed when it needs to be, but he can be passionately intense at other times. Wilson starts the laid-back ballad "Charming" singing, "We laid down deep in the cold walls/ Closed the path, we'll meet in the snowfall," without much force. But by mid-song, he and guest vocalist Jim Adkins (of Jimmy Eat World fame) are belting out, "They don't need things, nor do I/Trade your secret for a lie."

This type of soft-to-intense buildup is also evident on one of the album's more chill-inducing songs. "Under the Moon" starts with a softly chugging guitar intro and Wilson's quiet voice barely breathing out the lyrics. By the chorus, he is loudly crooning, "Half alive down by the shore/just swim back to the rocks and wait in the dark/deep and cold, I was so scared," over a sparse background of ringing guitar chords and Chris Prescott's syncopated drums.

No Knife really shines on some of "Fire's" faster, harder moments. The third track, "Short Term Memory," is two minutes worth of boisterous, frantically beautiful rock. The catchy triplet guitar part during the intro to "Angel Bomb" sounds a bit happier. The song's chorus is trademark No Knife — halfway-distorted guitars, start-and-stop drumming and more

COURTESY PHOTO

After releasing two earlier less-polished albums, No Knife defined its sound with 1999's 'Fire in the City of Automats.' The band played in San Luis Obispo last fall with Jimmy Eat World.

No Knife
Fire in the City of Automats
Time Bomb Recordings, 1999

than its share of edge. "Secret Handshake" could even be mistaken for Jimmy Eat World, with its mid-tempo driving verses and big sing-along chorus.

The music on "Fire" does not represent a major change in the band's style; dissident playing and complex songwriting have been trademarks since 1995's "Drunk on the Moon" and 1997's "Hit Man Dreams." But the album is more refined and mature than its two predecessors. This is probably due to Australian producer Greg Wales' influence. Mark Trombino, currently a big-name indie rock producer and formerly a member of the band Drive Like Jehu, produced both "Drunk" and "Hit Man."

Wales stretches out No Knife's softer moments, which are heard only in passing on the first two records. (Coincidentally, Wales also produced 2002's "Riot for Romance," and it is the band's most tightly assembled album yet.)

"Fire" is a good place to start when exploring No Knife. If you like the rough-around-the-edges feel, listen to their earlier work. If you like the tight songwriting, try "Riot for Romance."

Just try not to cut yourself.

Grant Shellen is a journalism senior whose mom tells him he's very sharp.

The Recycle Bin

Lost treasure
'Don't Look Now'
makes its way to DVD

Venice, Italy, may make you think of romantic rides with singing gondoliers, but this city of serpentine canals and crumbling buildings has also been the setting for some darkly intriguing films about desire, decay and death, including "Death in Venice," "The Comfort of Strangers" and "The Wings of the Dove" (all of which are recommended).

"Don't Look Now," a nearly lost treasure, long hard to find on videotape, has finally come out as a DVD. Famous for years as one of the creepiest films ever made, "Don't Look Now" stars Donald Sutherland and Julie Christie as a couple who, after the traumatic drowning of their daughter, are haunted by her seeming reappearance among the twists and turns of the bridges, alleys and canals of Venice. Are those barely glimpsed flashes of red coming from the coat their daughter was wearing when she drowned, or are they signs of the supernatural or of psychosis bleeding into the couple's lives and threatening a flood?

Director Nicolas Roeg cuts images together in ways that are still baffling and breathtaking, and the film's notoriously steamy love scene, intercut with shots of ordinary domesticity, is still unusual in its eroticization of marriage.

COURTESY PHOTO

If you like "Don't Look Now," try the equally brilliant "Performance" with Mick Jagger, or "The Man Who Fell to Earth" with David Bowie.

(1973; 110 min.; color; rated R; VHS/DVD)

Doug Keesey is a Cal Poly film professor.

Around the World in 80 Bites

Finding the meaning of matza helps get in touch with Jewish heritage

Passover occurred three weeks ago. I only learned this after asking my roommate/best friend about the crates of matza (a thin, flat bread) still stocked in our kitchen. During that time, she refused to eat leavened bread, yeast or any other type of fermented food. Now I understand! She had to keep those food rules for Passover!

Many people (including myself) can never fully understand why she puts herself through this. For the pragmatic Chinese this is especially disconcerting, since they eat everything almost indiscriminately. In contrast, Jews have many rules that are essential to their religion.

Though Passover is over, I thought writing an article for people who missed out would provide an opportunity to learn. As with every Jewish holiday, I ask my roommate questions like, "Why?" and "What for?" in an effort to gather more interesting tidbits and also because, I admit, I have a really terrible memory.

My roommate never lets me down, though. Usually after exclaiming how we've known each other half of our lives and how I should know the meaning behind the holidays, she proceeds to answer the questions I ask. I learn something new every time.

Passover celebrates the time when the Jews left Egypt. This is when Moses liberated his people, who were once slaves, and led them to find a home. Since the Jewish people were in a hurry to leave, their bread didn't have time to rise. Therefore, there was matza, and it tasted good!

For many Jewish people, Passover means getting together with family and friends to celebrate heritage and traditions. It is also a time to remember when Jews were slaves and how they wandered in the desert for 40 years. In essence, Passover is the celebration of life and freedom.

I know the Passover Seder, which includes the dinner, is special. Proof of this is my roommate driving three hours north for it. Political science senior Ella Porat said her mom kept calling for her to go home for Passover.

"She would bug me and say how she's been cooking for the past two days!" Porat said.

Sedar, for those of you not familiar with the word, is the experience of sitting at the table during Passover and explaining the significance and symbolism of certain objects on the table. The Torah is also read. A typical American Passover dinner consists of potatoes, chicken and salad.

Whether you're at home or away, Jewish or Muslim, Buddhist or atheist, everyone can appreciate a holiday celebrating life and freedom. Though Passover has passed, matza is always present.

As Jews say when they toast at the dining table, "Le chaim!" or, "to life!"

Matzo Ball Mix

Makes: 12 matzo balls

Materials:

Small bowl

2 eggs

2 Tbsp vegetable oil

2 1/2 quarts cold water

4 quart pot

1 Manischewitz Matzo Ball Mix packet

Mix:

In a small bowl, blend 2 eggs and 2 Tbsp of vegetable oil.

Add contents of one packet and stir with fork until evenly mixed.

Place bowl in refrigerator for 15 minutes.

In a 4-quart pot, bring to a boil 2 1/2 quarts water and 2 tsp salt if desired.

Wet hands and form batter into balls approximately 1 inch in diameter

Boil:

Drop into boiling water, cover tightly and reduce heat and simmer for 20 minutes.

Deborah Ting is a nutrition senior and Mustang Daily columnist.

What's Going On

Coming up this week

Rec Center Intramural Sports - There will be a golf tournament May 16. Sign-ups for the events have already begun.

WOW Shopping Spree Fund-raiser - The WOW Orientation Program will host the Supermarket Spree May 14 at Albertson's. Two winners will be selected to race through the store for three minutes. Tickets can be purchased between May 5 and 12 at the Los Osos Valley Road and Foothill Albertson's, in the WOW office in the University Union and the WOW booth in the UU Plaza.

'From Oslo to Jenin: From Peace Process to Intifada' - Israeli professor David Meir Levi will speak May 19 from 7 to 9 p.m. in Philips Hall.

PLAY

continued from page 1

and her grandmother Dorothea," Stauffer said. "Each of the three women is remarkable."

Dorothea is a notable eccentric, Artie is a respected scientist and Echo is the National Spelling Bee Champion after she successfully spells "eleemosynary," which happens to be her favorite word.

"Echo pulls everything together in the play and illustrates her courage and strength by being loved," Copeland said.

The play ebbs back and forth in time to examine the origins and the outcomes of the conflict and the love that bind the three generations of women together. Artie battles with the abandonment of her daughter and the challenge to be herself.

"The story looks at the concept of motherhood and the problems and love that people have with their mothers," Sitko said. "'Eleemosynary' really shows the strength of the bond between mother and child and how strong the relationship is."

The stage is extremely simple and allows the audience to focus on the emotional aspects of the characters. This production also features music junior Kristin Harris on the cello. Lighting and sets are designed by Tim Dugan, and costumes are designed by Kathy Dugan.

"The cello really adds a nice touch to the play, and it creates smooth transitions and background music," Sitko said. "It was a great idea of our director and I can't imagine what the play would be like without it."

The "Eleemosynary" curtain will be 8 p.m. for evening performances and 2 p.m. on Sunday for a matinee. There will be "talk-backs" following the shows on Thursday and May 21, allowing the audience to pose questions to the people involved in the play. After the Sunday matinee, there will be a special discussion entitled, "Our Daughters/Our Mothers/Our Grandmothers/Ourselves."

Advance ticket purchase is recommended because of a limited seating capacity, since the play and audience will be on stage. Due to the intimacy of the production there will be no late seating.

General admission tickets are $10 and $9 for students and seniors, and may be purchased by contacting the Cal Poly Theatre at 756-2787.

"Eleemosynary" is produced with permission from Dramatist Play Service and is co-presented by the College of Liberal Arts. The piece was written by Blessing in 1985 and the story line is originally focused around the same year.

"Lee Blessing is a quality script writer and it is exciting to act in a play that has such a presentational manner," Copeland said. "Blessing words flow as if they were being sung."

The play is a smaller production compared to winter quarter's extravagant play, "Guys and Dolls." Director Erma Stauffer is a part-time speech professor at Cal Poly and also co-directed the Cal Poly production, "A Wrinkle in Time."

"This is my last play at Cal Poly and it is offering me a great experience by working with such a talented and different style director than I am used to," Sitko said.

ON THE ROCKS

Is there something we left out?

Wanna tell us what to run?

Check out

MustangDaily.Calpoly.edu

and fill out the online survey

Mustang
DAILY

Confused?

No, Michael Jackson is not playing at Mother's Tavern any time soon.

Please refrain from calling Mother's to inquire about the fictitious event. All stories in Tuesday's paper were FAKE, as was indicated on the cover.

Tomfoolery
brought to you by Mustang Daily's Gonzo issue

Find out how the Ray Scherr Business Plan Competition beginning next Fall can launch you on the road to...

world domination, independence, financial success, and creativity.

What: Entrepreneurship Club Spring Mixer and Business Planning and Venture Funding Event!

Free appetizers! (a wine bar will be available for adults)

Where: Gardens of Avila, SLO

When: Thursday, May 15, 2003, 5:30~7:30 PM

<http://www.criterion.net/mixer>

more information and driving directions can be obtained at the above address

Meet David Cremin, partner in venture capital firm DFJ Frontier, and learn what investors want in a successful business plan. David will...

- Mingle with attendees to talk individually about venture capital
- Discuss how to commercialize technologies
- Describe best practices for startup fund raising

Anyone serious about their future should not miss this event!

WANTED: Mustang Daily Editors

News, Opinion, Arts & Culture, Sports, Copy, Photo & On the Rocks Editors!

To apply for the 2003-2004 yr. bring:

Letter of intent,
Section proposal,
& Resume to Andra Coberly in the Mustang Daily.

DUE

May 16th, 5pm.

Two quarters of Mustang Daily required.
Experience preferred.

Call 756-1796
for questions

Unlearning the art of procrastination

Q: I am constantly putting my school work off to the last minute and pulling all-nighters to catch up. How do I avoid procrastinating so much?

A: Ahhh, the old familiar rush. You sit down the night before a midterm, tear the plastic shrinkwrap off of your textbook and mark the end of the 200 pages of assigned reading you've had since the beginning of the quarter. With your triple latte on one side and your package of Double Stuffed Oreos on the other, you begin your long night of cramming. You can almost feel the adrenaline pumping through your veins — or is that the Xenadrine you popped to keep you alert?

Procrastination is a problem all of us face. Well, all of us except those enviable students who map out their study time to the minute and consider those hours so rock-solidly booked that even the allures of a Monday night trip to Mother's for Karaoke can't tear them away. For the rest of us, the stress of procrastination is all too familiar.

In an online article entitled "Tomorrow ... Tomorrow: Why we procrastinate," Haro Marano cites three different types of procrastinators.

First is the "Thrill Seeker." These procrastinators shamelessly dilly-dally and actively look for distractions in order to experience that last-minute euphoric rush of adrenaline. It seems kind of sadistic that people would actually choose to inflict this stress into their own lives, but these people often claim that they work better under pressure.

Next, there is the "Avoiders" category. Procrastinators in this realm may be avoiding a number of things. Often it is the fear of failure that keeps them from accomplishing their goals. "Avoiders" procrastinate because they would rather attribute a lack of effort rather than a lack of skill as the reason for failure.

Finally, there are the "Decisional Procrastinators". This category encompasses those people who cannot make decisions. People often don't make decisions because they lack the confidence and skills to do so, or they just want to avoid the responsibility of possible outcomes. As the adage says, not to decide is to decide.

Once you place yourself into one of these categories, then you can start to develop a plan to avoid problems in the future. For instance, if you are a true "thrill seeker," get a hobby. Hello! Extreme sports or some other adrenaline arousing activity is far more fun than pulling an all-nighter, and it won't negatively affect your quality of work.

"Avoiders" can start on their road to time management by realizing that if they put in the appropriate amount of effort, they are less likely to fail and won't have to deal with explaining that a severe lack of sleep is the reason they bombed a test. And for those who have a hard time with making decisions, several methods exist to help you overcome your wishy-washy ways.

When attempting to solve your procrastination problems, don't just head to El Corral and buy yourself a planner. If you are a longtime perpetrator, it is going to take more than a calendar and color-coded time lines. You are going to have to train yourself to exert some self-control in the face of distractions and tempting excuses.

Kathy Paauf of OrgCoach.net gives a list of ways to help you overcome your procrastination. Her tips includes breaking larger projects into manageable bites, setting time limits for small tasks such as paying bills and returning phone calls and making a weekly appointment with yourself to plan your coming week and actually sticking to those plans. Overcoming procrastination takes will power and a desire to succeed.

Besides being detrimental to your quality of work, procrastination can also negatively affect your health. Marano's article states that over the course of an academic term, procrastinating college students had lowered immune systems, which caused more colds, flus and gastrointestinal problems — gross. Plus, procrastinators often suffer from insomnia, which carries a whole list of adverse effects in itself.

So don't procrastinate overcoming your procrastination. It seems tough, but just do it. Many writers give extensive lists in how to beat the problem, but seriously, just make the decision and follow through. You'll be much happier and healthier and all of those people who are working on that group project with you will breath a sigh of relief.

Sara Howell is a journalism senior and Mustang Daily columnist.

Troubleshooter is your chance to get answers to the questions plaguing your everyday life. Don't know the quickest route from the parking lot to class? Not sure what the contents of a hot dog are? Ask Troubleshooter any question, from dating to why it's hard to figure out how many classes you need to graduate. E-mail your questions to troubleshooterMD@hotmail.com and Troubleshooter will get on it.

Troubleshooter

All hail the powerful Poly Card

With more than 17,000 students on campus, it's hard to believe that all of them have at least one thing in common. That one commonality is a little piece of plastic known as the Poly Card.

Your complementary introduction begins when you first arrive on this campus. After that, it is your responsibility to take care of it, and for some it's not that easy. Think about it: How many Poly Cards have you gone through?

You would think something with such useful potential would be kept fairly close to the heart. The Poly Card has major powers that can assist students in some phenomenal ways. This little plastic bit can hold money for you, in case you get the munchies while on campus but forgot your wallet at home. It can also aid in the last minute printing of whatever your little fingers have typed.

Commentary

The Poly Card is the only way you can get almost anything done in the library. Without it, you can't check anything out, including reserve material. You can't use the spiffy private computers on the second floor, which I highly recommend if you need to get your butt in gear for the last-minute political science paper. You are practically restricted from walking through the automatic doors.

Poly Cards are also sacred to staff running things up on the hill. You can barely get looked at up there unless you have the thing stapled to your forehead. What's with this, do they think students just want to impersonate each other? What happened to good old honesty? So now that all the purposes are out on the table, I am curious as to how students treat their beloved Poly Card?

For the most part, the whole Poly Card phenomenon is something worth looking into.

I did an informal oral survey on how many Poly Cards students go through during their college career. Of the 15 people I asked about their Poly Card's life, 60 percent of the students said they were on their third or fourth Poly Card. The other remaining participants either had their original card or had no clue what I was even talking about ... OK. I will have to point out the one case that really threw me for a loop. The response I got from the senior agricultural business student was amazing. He said he was successfully on his eighth Poly Card. I asked him if he regularly used the thing, and he said it gets more use than his ATM card.

I was floored to hear these findings, and I had to know more. So if he depended on it so much, why was he so careless with it? He said he had no worries on losing it because he could always get a new one whenever the instance arose. I quickly made the connection in my head, "As long as Cal Poly will give you a new card, there is no reason to be careful with it." So maybe Cal Poly is the instigator of this irresponsibility.

For the most part, the whole Poly Card phenomenon is something worth looking into. I myself am proud to say that I am still on my first card. But apparently others aren't so lucky. So students of Cal Poly, take care of your little plastic friend and remember, be nice to it and it will be nice to you.

Amanda Hippe is a journalism senior and a Mustang Daily staff writer.

Letters to the editor

Event deserved more coverage

Editor,

I found it disheartening opening up the Mustang Daily Monday morning and only seeing a picture with a small caption about the Lantern Festival held over the weekend. I attended the event and was thoroughly impressed at what the Asian and Pacific Islander community of this campus put together. It makes me sad to think that all of this hard work was reduced to a picture and a few words. It is this kind of trivialization of the minority effort on this campus that has left me and many others shaking our heads wondering why our events aren't important enough to cover.

Karen Sindayen is a kinesiology junior.

Editor,

Two weekends ago, the Cal Poly Asian-American community put on one of our biggest events of the year, the Lantern Festival. During this event, our Asian-American organizations come together, share our cultures and are recognized as a vital aspect of the San Luis Obispo community. We sold lots of food, including Chinese chow mein, Korean BBQ, Vietnamese spring rolls, Thai iced tea, Filipino lumpia and other delicious ethnic foods. There were dozens of performances, including the Lion Dance by the Chinese Student Association (CSA), Polynesian dancing by Chi Delta Theta, a martial arts demonstration by Lambda Phi Epsilon, a free style flowing session by Delta Sigma Pi, Vietnamese dances by the Vietnamese Student Association (VSA), Indian dancing by the Indian Student Association (ISA) and singing, hip-hop dancing and folk dancing by the Pilipino Cultural Exchange (PCE). A large crowd of various people from the community attended. We know the Mustang Daily attended only because there was ONE picture and a SHORT caption in the paper that next Monday. However, we as a community are extremely unsatisfied by the representation, or should I say, lack of representation with the journalists included in the Mustang Daily on Monday. The Asian-American community is a big part of this college campus. We just thought the community should be aware of what you failed to report.

Sheila Castillo is a computer engineering sophomore and the Pilipino Cultural Exchange choir director.

Letter policy

Letters become the property of the Mustang Daily. Mustang Daily reserves the right to edit letters for grammar, profanities and length. Letters, commentaries and cartoons do not represent the views of the Mustang Daily. Please limit length to 250 words. Letters should include the writer's full name, phone number, major and class standing.

By mail:

Letters to the Editor
Building 26, Room 226
Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo
CA 93407

By fax:

(805) 756-6784

By e-mail: mustangdaily@hotmail.com

Letters must come from a Cal Poly e-mail account. Do not send letters as an attachment. Please send the text in the body of the e-mail.

Attention:

Your letter will not be printed unless you submit it in the correct format.

Mustang DAILY

May 14, 2003
Volume LXVII, No. 128
© 2003 Mustang Daily

GRAPHIC ARTS BUILDING, SUITE 226
CAL POLY SAN LUIS OBISPO
SAN LUIS OBISPO, CA 93407
mustangdaily.calpoly.edu

EDITORIAL (805) 756-1796
ADVERTISING (805) 756-1143
FAX (805) 756-6784
mustangdaily@calpoly.edu

Stephen Curran editor in chief
Malia Spencer managing editor
Andra Coberly news editor
Dena Horton opinion editor
Steve Hill arts & culture editor
Jacob Jackson sports editor
Shannon Connelly special section editor
Brian Kent photo editor
Eric Henderson assistant photo editor
Matt Szabo head copy editor
Andy Fahey, Emily Wong copy editors
Teresa Allen faculty adviser

graphics adviser Patrick Munroe business manager Paul Bittick layout designer Matt Beals web & technology manager Brett Heliker production manager Brooke Finan circulation Andrea Bittick, Elizabeth Bemis advertising director Carrie McGourty national ad manager Ryan McMichael ad design manager Matt Lawicki advertising reps Steven Deol, Lauren Jeter, Jerri Jessen, Jim Weber, Daryl Wiser, Isaiah Bebb, Corey Krovick, Enza Zabatta ad designers Sheri Sakamoto, Allison Jantos, Josh Hiney, Tyler Imoto, Kerry Ko

KCPR

91.3

*Learn it, Love it,
Live it*

Science may have found a cure for most evils; but it has found no remedy for the worst of them all-- the apathy of human beings.

~Helen Keller

RACE UNITY DAY 2003

Take a Break from studying!!!

Santa Cruz & Kona Bike Demo Day

Saturday 05/17/2003, 10am-6pm

- 🚴 Group Rides Throughout the Day
- 🚴 10:30am Bicycle Scavenger Hunt
- 🚴 Raffle for a FREE Bicycle
- 🚴 In-Store Specials All Weekend
- 🚴 Call 543.1148 to reserve a bike

1422 Monterey Street
Uptown SLO - 543-1148
www.abetterbikeshop.com

Police: Reporters' calls to Scott Peterson taped

By Brian Melley
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

SACRAMENTO — A prosecutor said Tuesday that Scott Peterson's telephone was tapped earlier this year and investigators may have listened in on interviews with journalists in case he admitted killing his pregnant wife.

"It's an investigative tool," said John Goold, a prosecutor in Stanislaus County. "They're seeking anything that might come out of that conversation, up to and including a confession."

Peterson, 30, has pleaded innocent to murdering his wife, Laci, and unborn son. Prosecutors have said they will seek the death penalty if he is convicted.

Both Scott and Laci Peterson are Cal Poly alumni.

County prosecutors have sent about a dozen letters to journalists, a lawyer and a member of the public notifying them of the court-ordered phone taps, Goold said. The letter said only that the taps were authorized from Jan. 10 to Feb. 4, but Goold confirmed they were on Peterson's phone.

The Modesto Bee newspaper and NBC were notified that calls from their reporters had been intercepted, Goold said.

Goold also said investigators intercepted calls from one of Peterson's lawyers. Those calls are privileged conversations between attorney and client, and prosecutors say investigators do not listen in once the identity of the caller is determined.

Peterson's defense lawyers did not return phone calls Tuesday.

PolyVision Needs You!

CPTV Executive Staff 2003-2004

Now Accepting Applications for:

- Assistant News Director
- Producer
- Public Relations Director
- Communications Director
- Finance Director
- Sports Director

All majors welcome!

Pick up an application in the Journalism Dept. office.
For more info contact Alison Reeder at areeder@calpoly.edu

Classified Advertising

Graphic Arts Building, Room 226 Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo, CA 93407 (805) 756-1143

Campus Clubs

Mass at the Newman Center Thursdays 11:10 followed by lunch for $1
All are welcome!

Help Wanted

Does Your Summer Job Suck?

I need 8 students
to help me run my business.
For info call 805-550-4503

FUN - SUMMER

www.daycampjobs.com

We need fun and outgoing people to help with an on campus festival May 31st. Work is fun and easy, pay is $12 per hour. Please call toll free 888-989-9146 ASAP for more info.

Classifieds
756-1143

Help Wanted

City of Morro Bay
Recreation and Parks Dept.
Kids Camp Directors,
Counselors, Counselors-in-
Training. P/T 20-40 hr/wk
$7-$9.22/hr;

Supervise children in Summer camp setting and assist in prep of activities and field trips.
Deadline 5/30/03

Teen Leader:
Programs/Events/Teen Center
P/T 20-30 hr/wk; $7.42/hr;
Supervise Teen Center, organize and implement weekend and evening events for teens. Deadline:
5/30/03

Skate Park Attendant
P/T 20 hr/wk; $7.42/hr;
Supervise skaters, put up and take down ramps, collect money.
Deadline 5/30/03
Apply for all positions at City Morro Bay, 595 Harbor
805-772-6207

SUMMER CAMPS
www.daycampjobs.com

Help Wanted

Train to be Behavior Therapist
Training provided to lead to paid position in intensive applied behavior analysis program for child with autism. 20-25 hrs./wk.
Weekends Req.
Internship poss.
Piano talent a plus.
878-2021 or 481-1511

Employment

Day Camps Seek Summer Staff
Residing in the San Fernando or Conejo Valleys $2800+ 888-784-CAMP
www.workatcamp.com

Summer Camp Counselors
Decathlon Sports Club --
Palo Alto 6/23-8/15 9am-4pm
www.DecathlonSportsClub.com

Employment

Administrative Position!
Alamo Pintado Equine Medical Clinic in Santa Ynez Valley.
Horse experience necessary.

Requires excellent people skills. Full time.
Contact Lisa or Susan at 805-688-6510 or fax resume to 805-693-5425

Announcements

Fort Locks Self Storage
Grover Beach and Nipomo rent 3 months. Get 4th month free
489-2075 or 929-8398
We rent UHaul also!

Classifieds are killer!

Happy 21st birthday to Jacob Jackson!
Party like a rock star.
Love, your Mustang Daily friends

Homes For Sale

Large 3 Bdr, 2 Bath
Mobile Home, excellent for students plus many other properties. For a free list of homes contact Jim McBride
Century 21 SLP 783-4403

Houses and condos for sale
For a free list of all houses and condos for sale in SLO call Nelson
Real Estate 546-1990 or email
steve@slohomes.com

Rental Housing

Summer Sublet
Own room with shared bathroom
Available 6/16, close to campus
Call Malia 756-1796

UH @ Mustang Village
Studios, 2,3, & 4 Bdrm. apts.
Discounts available
leasing @uhmustangvillage.com

Female roommate wanted to share room in house very close to campus.
(562) 879-4899

Notebook

Women's Soccer

New 7-A-Side dates announced

CAL POLY SPORTS INFORMATION REPORT

The Cal Poly 7-A-Side Soccer Tournament, originally scheduled for May 3 and 4, has been rescheduled for the week-end of May 31-Jun 1.

For more information, please call the soccer office at 756-2654.

Alumni Watch

Burford leads Barcelona to first

CAL POLY SPORTS INFORMATION REPORT

Former Cal Poly quarterback Seth Burford has led the Barcelona Dragons to a 4-2 start and a tie for first place in NFL Europe.

Barcelona, which jumped to a 4-1 start, fell Saturday to the Berlin Thunder 24-14 in Barcelona. The Dragons are tied for first place with the Rhein Fire and Frankfurt Galaxy, all with 4-2 records.

In six games, Burford has completed 61 of 106 passes for 570 yards and five touchdowns. Last week against the Thunder, Burford completed 14 of 24 passes for 139 yards and one touchdown, a six-yard pass to Sean Morey in the fourth quarter. Burford was sacked four times.

Barcelona and Berlin Thunder have a rematch Saturday in Berlin.

Baseball

Herbert earns academic honors

CAL POLY SPORTS INFORMATION REPORT

Cal Poly junior outfielder Sam Herbert has been named to the 2003 Verizon Academic All-District VIII Baseball Team.

Herbert is currently hitting .358 with a team-leading 19 doubles along with three triples and a pair of home runs. The center fielder has driven in 28 runs and also has 11 stolen bases in 19 attempts.

Herbert is a kinesiology major with a 3.42 grade point average. He has started 45 of Cal Poly's 47 games, all but two in center field. Herbert also started one game at third base and another as designated hitter. He missed two games due to a sprained ankle in February.

Herbert had a 16-game hitting streak earlier this season, going 34 for 71 (.479) during the streak. He was 12-for-26 in six games en route to all-tournament honors at the Pepsi/Johnny Quik Classic at Fresno State in March.

Herbert leads the Mustangs with 25 multiple-hit games, including a 6 for 7 game March 28 at Southern Utah. He also has seven three-hit games and once was hitting as high as .418 earlier this season.

Sports information directors who are members of the College Sports Information Directors of America voted. As a District VIII honoree, Herbert will be considered for the national Verizon Academic All-America Baseball Team.

Cal Poly Softball

Perfect in the end

NELS GERHARDT/MUSTANG DAILY

Cal Poly pitcher Jamie Gelbart did not allow a batter to reach base while recording her fifth shutout of the season Friday night. The Mustangs defeated Utah State 10-0 to clinch the three-game series.

► Gelbart fires perfect game to clinch Mustangs' final series of the season

CAL POLY SPORTS INFORMATION REPORT

SAN LUIS OBISPO — Junior pitcher Jamie Gelbart pitched a perfect game in the second game of the doubleheader to cap a Cal Poly sweep of Utah State at Bob Janssen Field Friday night. Cal Poly won game one, 3-2, in eight innings, before taking game two, 10-0, in five innings.

Gelbart retired all 15 Aggie batters in game two, two by way of strikeout, to pick up her first career perfect game and fifth shutout of the season.

The Mustang offense jumped on the board in the third inning of game two, when after Kim Dalldorf walked and Chelsea Green reached on a fielder's choice, AmyJo Nazarenus delivered a two-RBI double to score Dalldorf and Green to make the score 2-0. Cal Poly then exploded for eight runs in the fourth. After a Shannon Brooks walk and two singles by Carrie Schubert and Natalie Carrillo, the bases were loaded for Chelsea Green who then delivered a double to score all three runners. Green later scored on an error after AmyJo Nazarenus reached on a fielder's choice.

Roni Sparrey then hit an RBI single to score Nazarenus. Chelsy Stoufer followed with a single. After Brooks drew another walk, Carrillo hit a three-RBI double to score Sparrey, Stoufer, and Brooks for the 10-0 lead.

Nazarenus and Carrillo were both 2 for 3 with two RBIs, while Green was 1 for 3 with three RBIs.

Carli Baumgartner picked up the loss for the Aggies.

In game one, the Mustangs scored first in the third on a Green RBI triple that scored Schubert. While the Aggies responded with a run in fourth and took the lead on a suicide squeeze in the sixth, the Mustangs tied the game in the seventh. With two outs, Sparrey hit an infield single and Stoufer reached on an error. That opened the door for Holly Ballard, who reached on an error to score Sparrey to tie the game at two.

In the eighth inning, Carrillo lead off with a double. After a Schubert single, Stephanie Payan hit an RBI single to score pinch runner Julie Fuhrman for the game-winning run.

Schubert was 3 for 4 at the plate, while Ballard was 2 for 4 and Green was 2-for-5 with an RBI.

Gelbart took the win in relief in game one, going three innings giving up only one hit. Leslie Higley took the loss.

On Saturday, the Mustangs wrapped up the 2003 season with a 6-3 loss to Utah State at Bob Janssen Field.

The Mustangs completed the season with a 22-38 record (7-14 in the Big West), while Utah State ended the season with an 8-40 record (3-18 Big West).

The Mustangs scored first when in the bottom of the first, Chelsea Green scored on an error after singling and advancing on an AmyJo Nazarenus sacrifice and a Roni Sparrey single. Sparrey then scored on a Chelsy Stoufer single for a 2-0 lead.

Cal Poly added another run in the second, when after Julie Fuhrman singled, Kaitlyn Wilson doubled to score Fuhrman for a 3-0 Cal Poly lead. Wilson was 2 for 3 at the plate with an RBI.

However, the Aggies responded with five runs in the fourth, two of which came on a Quela Henderson single. They would add another in the fifth for the 6-3 lead.

The Mustangs threatened again in the seventh inning after Kaitlyn Wilson singled and Green reached on an error. However, after pinch hitter Shannon Brooks popped out, Roni Sparrey lined into a double play to end the game.

Leslie Higley took the win while Jamie Gelbart suffered the loss. Gelbart finished the season with almost half of the Mustangs' wins and a 10-13 record.

mustang

BAR

SCORES

WOMEN'S TENNIS	0
vs. georgia tech	4
BASEBALL	8
vs. northridge	7
BASEBALL	6
vs. northridge	5
BASEBALL	10
vs. northridge	9
SOFTBALL	3
vs. fullerton	2
SOFTBALL	3
vs. michigan st.	6

SCHEDULE

BASEBALL	fri., may 16, 2 p.m.
vs. santa barbara	@ ucsb
BASEBALL	sat., may 17, 1 p.m.
vs. santa barbara	@ ucsb
BASEBALL	sun., may 18, 1 p.m.
vs. santa barbara	@ ucsb
BASEBALL	fri., may 23, 6 p.m.
vs. stanford	@ stanford
BASEBALL	sat., may 24, 1 p.m.
vs. stanford	@ stanford
BASEBALL	sun., may 25, 1 p.m.
vs. stanford	@ stanford
TRACK AND FIELD	fri., may 16
vs. big west	@ northridge
TRACK AND FIELD	fri.-sat., may 30-31
vs. ncaa regionals	@ stanford
FIELD HOCKEY	fri.-sun., may 23-25
vs. cal cup	berkeley

STATS

By the Numbers

3

Consecutive national titles for the Cal Poly women's lacrosse team. The Mustangs, the No. 2 seed in the tournament, upset top-seeded UCLA in the final last weekend in St. Louis. The Bruins had handed the Mustangs their only two losses this season. Cal Poly journalism senior Lauren Chase was named Tournament MVP.

TRIVIA

today's question

What's Rocky's dog's name?

Submit answers to: jljackso@calpoly.edu

Tuesday's question

How many title defenses does Rocky make before losing the heavyweight crown to Clubber Lang?

10

Congratulations to Jonathan Romero, Rich Brown and Adam Martin!!

Sports editor Jacob Jackson can be reached at 756-1796 or jljackso@calpoly.edu.